FOREWORD

"In days of old, When knights were bold—"

Long ago in the days when men lived by their own strength alone, the spirit of chivalry came into being. Stories of gallant knights and fair ladies, products of this age of chivalry, remain to us in the form of "Idylls of the King", written by that great master of English poetry, Alfred Lord Tennyson. Wishing to keep alive the noble tradition of knighthood, we, the staff of the Black and Gold, select as our theme, "King Arthur and the Knights of the Round Table".

POEM OF JANUARY CLASS OF 1934

O. G. Allen, Poet

We gallop abreast.

Our foe is the world.

We gallop abreast

Our banners unfurled.

We ride to the fight

With a whoop of delight.

We'll conquer the world.

The crusaders ride!

The crusaders ride!

The trumpets sound. The clarions call Reverberating through each kingly hall,

The call to the battle rings.

The trumpet call of kings

Blasts wide the sky.

Even the sluggards fly.

Behold! We ride!

The crusaders ride!

No more will sound our calling of good cheer.

No more will fall our footsteps on your ear.

No more these halls will hear our laughter ring.

For, on the morrow, all the gods of battle bring

Their thunder and their fire

To curdle our desire.

Tomorrow we will test the teachings of these years

We've spent in training. All our fears

Shall leave us as we buck the battle tide.

All our fears shall vanish as we ride.

Realized shall be our dreams of wanton days;

As galloping onward down life's highways,

We, the Crusaders ride!

We gallop abreast.

Our foe is the world.

We gallop abreast

Our banners unfurled.

We ride to the fight

With a whoop of delight.

We'll conquer the world.

The Crusaders ride!

The Crusaders ride!

JANUARY CLASS SUPERLATIVES

Elizabeth Click and Albert Shermer Can scarcely stay on terra firma, For they are the class's most popular two Ever ready with something new.

O Helen May and Helen may not, For she and Brunace Fowler, I wot, Are the flirts of the Class of '34 And many triumphs may they score.

Again Miss Click must make a bow, And guess whom we have with her now? Blond Harold, that right handsome young

Their looks put the rest of the class in the shade.

Harold Thomerson and Lucy Ferne Vaughn Will never be left feeling forlorn,

For in athletics they ever shine, And laurels their brows will always entwine.

Thrift Will never in this world be adrift.

HISTORY OF JANUARY CLASS OF 1934

Elaine Middleton, Historian

Prologue

In tracing the history of the January class of 1934, let us consider it as a drama in four acts, each year of high school life being a separate act.

Act 1

The curtain rose in 1930. The glimmering glare of ambition to be achieved and new heights to be attained blinded us. We knew neither what to do or what was expected of us. We flittered around as only Freshmen can-like milkweed pods in a whirlwind. Finally, with the help of Miss Gwynn, our sponsor, and Albert Shermer's leadership as president, we settled to the task of setting the stage for our little drama, and arranging ourselves for the individual parts to be played. Only one of our first-act players gained renown, N. T. Sandefur, who was awarded a monogram for work in athletics.

Act 2

Still dizzy from the effects of our first little scene enacted before a sneering audience of supposedly sophisticated upperclassmen and the many disillusions we had experienced, we entered the second act of the drama. Imagine the pride these groggy-headed little Sophomores felt when some of our budding geniuses began to blossom. Helen Contos and N. T. Sandefur were elected into the Quill and Scroll for their meritorious work on the publications. Albert Shermer not only proved to have outstanding traits of leadership but also manifested himself as a talented artist when he won the Graham Art Contest.

Act 3

During act three, our junior year, with Miss Hendricks as sponsor, Howard Morris, the president, held the center of the spotlight. By now the glare was not so dazzling. Most of us had found the parts we were to play on the athletic field. in art, dramatics, journalism, student government, and clubs. Elizabeth Click won a school monogram for girls, while N. T. Sandefur took honors in cross-country and track. Grace Payne won second place in the Graham Art Contest. James Spear was elected president of the Dawn Club, a new civic organization for young men, most of whom were members of our class. For doing such extraordinary work, these boys received personal recognition from Secretary of Interior Ickes.

Act 4

In act four, our last chance before the curtain fell, the master stroke was added. We who had once been giggling, wildeyed Freshmen became dignified Seniors, carrying out parts beyond our dreams of three years gone by. Albert Shermer was again elected president of the class with Miss Heilig as sponsor. This act we knew was our last. We had to make good! We did! Four of our members, Helen Contos, Muriel Freeman, Clara Mae Pegram, and William Thrift were elected into the National Honor Society. James Sparks and Gilbert Lee gained membership into the Quill and Scroll Society. Albert Shermer, John Porter, Arthur Stonestreet, M. E. Manuel, and William Thrift represented the school at the Rotary Club Luncheon. Gilbert Lee won the State Poster Contest on the "Progress of Woman". Clara Mae Pegram made an average of 100 on shorthand and typewriting and 98.5 subject average, this being the first time in the history of the school such grades had been made.

Epilogue

Now the curtain drops. Our high school days are only the prologue to our great drama of life. Today the whole world is our stage and we the actors (and stagehands), so we laugh and are happy to be in this proud pageant of man.

PROPHECY OF JANUARY CLASS, 1934

Bobby Mills, Prophet

Having achieved my ambition to become an aviator, I determined to fly to the 1983 World's Fair, now being held in Paris. I wired to several of my friends including that well known chef, Otha Smith, who is now employed at the Hotel New Yorker, in New York City. The hotel's proprietors are Mr. William Thrift and his wife, the former Miss Elizabeth Click. To abolish all fear of illness, I wired Dr. James Fitzgerald, who is the head monkeyologist at the Zoo of Natural History in Washington, D. C. I next wired the Honorable Norris Bodenheimer and wife, formerly Miss Mary Kelly King. She is a student of art at the famous art school, Lee, Lee, and Lee which is owned and operated by Mr. Gilbert Lee. He stayed at the university so long that they made him a present of it.

After calling a few more friends, I started to the airport, but on the way was stopped by Miss Gwendolyn Hopkins, who was in the habit of getting on the inside of all the news. She wanted to go with us.

We had been out to sea two minutes, and James Bolling, our radio expert, had been getting good weather reports. The passengers were being annoyed by that practical joker, Brunace Fowler, and that well known crooner, Mr. James Columbo' Spear, from station B. L. U. F. F.

Ten minutes later when we landed and started out to find a good hotel, whom should we meet but our old "34" class president, Mr. Albert Shermer, who is now the head art director at Oxford. Mr. Shermer took us to town in his car. As we drew up in front of the hotel, the footman approched us and opened the door. I stepped out and glanced up at the man who was very tall and rather plump. It seemed to me I had seen him somewhere before. It came to me like a flash! It was my old pal, Braxton Yountz.

After fifteen minutes of handshaking and talking, our party went to the dining room where we enjoyed a large meal of one pill, the food having been condensed into pills. Oh me, the curse of science!

We proceeded to the fair grounds and Dr. Fitzgerald bought the tickets. At the gate, we recognized the best looking boy in the "1834" class, "Hot Shot" Thomerson. Mr. Thomerson informed us that we would get a very pleasant surprise if we went to the Officers' Building and asked to see the managers. This we did and found that our class had done better than we had expected. The board was composed of part of our class. Randolph Elkins was head of the board, with Matro Moore as his secretary. Robert Snow was head of the clean-up department, while N. T. Sandefur, Jr. kept the guides on the run.

We left the Officers' Building and started on a tour of the grounds. First, we went to the Science Building, where we found James Hodge guarding the exhibit and playing with a new style steam engine. George Howard was in the physics department, demonstrating how everything can be done and why.

Seeing all there was to see here, we decided to go to the Hall of Fame, where all of the most important personages are pictured. The lower floor was for famous inventers. As we passed along, we saw several of our old class mates. saw James Fulton, who had invented a radio that permitted the person listeningin to argue back, and Arthur Stonestreet, who had invented a mechanical man that could be sent to school. This is for the student who wants to go swimming when it's too warm to sit in the classroom. We then went to the second floor, which was for authors. Here we found the pictures of Miss Nettie Sue Parnell and Miss Evelyn Mitchell.

The flight home was started to our wives and children or to our bachelor havens,

LAST WILL AND TESTAMENT OF JANUARY CLASS

William Thrift, Testator

Ladies and gentlemen, Board of Education, Superintendent, Teachers and Friends:

Upon behalf of my client, the January class of 1934, I have called you together upon this solemn occasion to listen to her last will and testament, and to receive from her dying hand the gifts she has to bestow.

Listen, then, while I read the document as duly drawn up and sworn to:

Article 1:

We give and bequeath to the faculty, who have been our instructors in all the wisdom of the ages, a sweet and unbroken succession of restful nights and peaceful dreams.

Our education has been a hard strain on them, for seniors are said to be difficult to manage. But they have done their duty and now they shall have their wellearned reward.

Article 2:

To Mr. Moore and Mr. Joyner, since each has served as principal, and to as appreciative faculty a high school can have, we extend our sincere thanks for the helpful instruction they have given. We wish to praise Mr. Joyner for his outstanding work.

Article 3:

To the Richard J. Reynolds high school we leave the dear old school song and hope that it will be loved and cherished as it was by us.

Article 4:

We give to the Junior Class all such boys as were not able to keep pace with such brilliant girls who compose the majority of our class, trusting that the junior girls may be able to hold more firmly to them than we have been able to do, and steer them next year through the gates of commencement.

The following may seem but trifling bequests, but we hope they may be accepted as valuable assets to those who may receive them, and a continual reminder of the generosity of heart displayed in our full and free bestowal:

Section 1:

To the football team of next year, we leave the ability of Harold Thomerson. We couldn't induce James Hodges to surrender his.

Section 2:

To all future class presidents, Albert Shermer leaves his ability to convince Mr. Joyner of the said president's unerring judgment.

Section 3:

To Joyner Burns we leave Beulah Heggie's gift of gab.

Section 4:

To anybody who needs it, we leave James Spear's bluff. Apply early and avoid the rush.

Section 5:

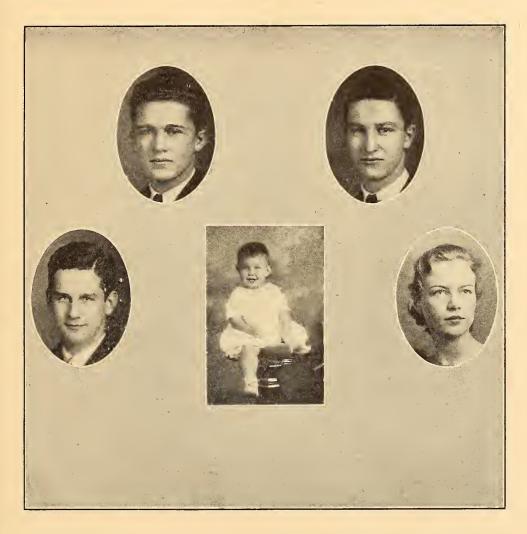

To George Blum, Harold Thomerson leaves his executive ability, but not his beauty. He'll need that, he fears, and won't be coaxed into leaving it behind, even with George, who needs it so badly.

Article 5:

And at last comes the one thing hard for us to part with. To our successors we must leave our places in the hearts and thoughts of principal and teachers. We are sure the faculty will feel the same interest in their attempts and successes; the same sorrow when they fail. We trust that the class of May, 1934 will appreciate all this as deeply as we have, that it may be their most precious possession, as it has been ours, and the one we

HISTORY OF MAY CLASS, 1934

Helen Haworth, Historian

In the year of 1930 the good king Education

Sent out heralds from his kingdom to his many knights

Announcing that at his court a tournament would hold

Where they could try their might and main

On the field of combat.

Knights of every rank and order responded

To their sovereign's wishes
And prepared to make a journey
Far across the hills and plains;
Never was such preparation
Seen before or since that day.
Never so much skill of arms tried;
Never so gallant did any knight ride.
It was early in the autumn season
When they set out on the journey
To the court of Education
At whose feet revolved the Nation.
And Education welcomed them with arms outstretched

And bid them enter the royal gates
And there a happy week was spent
Till the opening day of the tournament.

THE FIRST DAY

The morning of the first day of the tournament

Dawned without a blot upon the blue— The hot autumn sun was shooting shafts

Striking red flame from their helmets.
When garbed in shining armor
The knights entered the field of combat.
These knights came from far and wide
Great and small marched side by side.
I mind me how Sir Lawrence Vicars
Captain of the Freshman Order
Rode high upon his gallant charger
Upon his head a helmet of redgold gleamed

And over his gilded armor a purple vestment fell

A splendid sight; 'twould seem that all was well

As boldly flashed the burnished shields. Yet their hearts within them sank For Confidence, boldest of all the knights Wounded had been in recent fray; And Doubt and Fear the traitor knights Stalked among the lists that day.

Yet unflinchingly rank on rank
They stood with fix'ed gaze
For theirs was the purpose of success
And there were tried and goodly knights among their order.

Suddenly the trumpet blasted forth
The combat had begun!

And all stood nigh with eager eye
To see the royal knights ride by.

Brave Sir Latin led the list of Education's knights

His face was lean and dark with years And strong moulded features told the tale

Of many a hard combat.

Next in the list of the royal ranks

Came bold Sir Algebra

Brave Champion on brave steed

Upon whose manly shoulders rested

many a noble deed.

On and on they came
In a never ending line.
The Freshmen knights grew sick

The Freshmen knights grew sick with fear
And trembled in their ranks.

When on each side the leaders
Gave signal for the charge
Right gallantly did all the knights
Wield the lance and targe.
The clang of sword and shield
Swelled on the open air.
And yet the knights kept on the fight
Till the day was spent to gray twilight
And neither side had lost.
When it was too dark to continue the

When it was too dark to continue the sport

They decided to wait for the morn.
The Freshman Knights had progressed
thus far

LAST WILL AND TESTAMENT OF MAY CLASS, 1934

Ashley Little, Testator

We, the class of May, 1934, notwithstanding the eight months of school term, do hereby publish and ordain this, our last will and testament, on the leaving our dear Alma Mater.

First: To the Faculty: Our sincere gratitude and appreciation for their undying efforts and services rendered during this, our first eight months term; also, to their ceaseless care, we do intrust the front marble entrance, to be marveled at and not to be taken too seriously; the May Fete amphitheater, which seems doomed to lunch-bag football games; and the gymnasium and Hanes Field, seemingly destined never again to resound with the voices of the enthusiasts of that great but neglected institution, 'School Spirit.

Second: To the Student Body: Those long-honored and beloved activities such as: the Honor System, athletics, magazine campaign, Shakespearean Gardens, the various societies for noteworthy and honorable students, the journalistic, public speaking, and dramatic activities, the lost notes of the band, if they ever be found, and the art of studying in general.

Third: To the Juniors: "The Senior Privileges", if they can find them; the honor of giving the seniors a Junior-Senior dance; and the ability to be first always in everything as we have been.

Fourth: To the girls: A deeply heart-felt farewell, with sincere wishes that they may be as popular with the coming victims as they have been with us, referring to the sweeter half of our group for any instructions needed.

Fifth: To Clifton Naughton and Ethel Mae Angelo, Voit Gilmore and Mary Matthews do hereby will their journalistic abilities.

Sixth: To William Singletary, George Blum does finally will his intellectual ability, after much deliberation.

Seventh: To Dick Myers and Peggy Bowen, Hugh Duggins and Willena Couch will their strong bodies and athletic tendencies.

Eighth: To Dot Wyatt, Mary Lou Nash, Charles Wood, and Pete Wilson, Mary Woodruff, Margie Tuttle, Charles McCuiston and Dick Saintsing, do hand down their powers of fascination.

Ninth: To Eugene Liipfert, Robert Meredith Helm, Jr. does hereby bequeath his debating ability, which, incidentally, is the culmination of many abilities heretofore willed to Bobby.

Tenth: To Bill Brunt, Miles Horton leaves his good looks.

Eleventh: To Tom Lumpkin, Nancy Schallert wills her superb vocabulary, with the hopes that he may some day be able to make an "A" average.

Twelfth: We do hereby appoint as executrix of this will, Miss Ruth Ford, as a token of our appreciation of her untiring efforts this year as our class sponsor.

Signed and sealed this eighteenth day of May in the year of our Lord, 1934.

Ashley Little, Testator.

PROPHECY OF MAY CLASS OF 1934

Dick Saintsing, Prophet

Unable to forecast the future lives of our dignified seniors who are leaving the court of Richard J. Reynolds High School, I thought it best to consult one who could gaze into the crystal glass and foresee the future events. But whom should I visit? Merlin, of course. Was he not the wiset man of all time—the adviser to King Arthur? As I approached the mystery-shrouded cavern of the court wizard, I felt a sort of awe enveloping me. What would he see? Would our class be successful?

In the dimly-lighted cavern, Merlin allowed me to see only a few glimpses into the future as he said that the spirits would not consent to unfold the entire future.

Merlin finally persuaded the spirit to let me see into the future twenty-five years. In the Congressional session, I found a heated argument taking place between Robert Meredith Helm and Vincent Haizlip. Bobby, the small representative from North Carolina, was, however, ruled out of order by the Speaker, Mr. Burnette Hines. Mr. Helm vainly protested. He was immediately silenced by a warning glance from James the burly Sergeant-at-arms. Hodge, Other notable figures seen in the hall were Henry Stokes, Robert Jurney, Gurney Poole, Norman Bennett, and Luther Pike. Ashley Little was sitting in the gallery, quietly chuckling. The first lady of the land, the former Lucile Weatherman, was also there with her old schoolmate, Alice Turner.

They were talking as usual. What was that they said? Winston-Salem had just appointed Reid Bahnson superintendent of city schools! Teaching in the schools were: Carolyn Sparks, Raymer Faust, Christine Dunn, Royce Crim, and Robert McArthur. B. C. Hall had at last reached the height of his ambition—janitor of the school. As usual he persuaded someone else to do his work.

I begged Merlin to let me see a few years earlier in history of the class. Immediately the date was changed to 1950. This time I saw the world-famed college, Arrington Educational Institute. This institution was named after the immorttal Moyer Arrington. It was located at Vickersville, named after the famous lecturer and explorer, Marshal Vickers. This college was under the supervision of Helen Haworth. Moyer had not forgotten his school friends. Miles Horton was professor of science; Joyner Burns, professor of English: Hugh Duggins, coach of athletics; and Glenyce Dalton, professor of beauty culture. Donald Pfohl, the wild eyed musician was employed to play his flute upon the campus to draw birds; thus providing food for the students. The birds which were drawn by the music were shot down by the unerring aim of Jack Myers with his trusty bean-shooter. Harry Parker was employed as errand boy to carry the fowls to the kitchen where they were prepared by Margie Tuttle, chief dietition, who was assisted by Dave Henderson.

In the professional world, we found outstanding figures: Margaret Knouse, lawyer; Margaret Grishaw, professional model; Ruth Johnson, actress; Clarence Stone, lecturer; William Martin, archaeolologist; M. V. Brinkly, newspaper publisher; Margaret Dixson, historian; Virginia Mae Griffin, doctor; Arnold Hunt, sportsman; Mary Matthews, magazine publisher. Her greatest competitor was her former co-worker, Evelyn Tesh. Mary Frances Mayo had become a leading sportswoman.

The newspapers were running big headlines with the news that Laura Bland had just won the Lucy Gray Smither Cup for her original one-scene play. Anna

SUPERLATIVES OF MAY CLASS

Best All-round

They're not the best, nor the worst At all they try to do, So let the ''best all-round'' Go to Carol and Hugh.

Most Athletic

Oh, let them leap and let them run, They're best at everything they try. Willena Couch and Luther, too They have that spirit "to do or die."

Most Popular

As Hugh draws the heart of all, So Jean does by eyes of blue. Their popularity is deserved— Best liked of the girls and boys, too.

Most Intellectual

How happy they, like those who crown With wisdom's wreath their youthful joys joys

Hail, Nancy, intellectual maid!
Hail, Míles, wisest of the boys!

Best Looking

"O Beauty, thou on these bestow The fairest of thy crowns of grace— On Charles for his manly form And Marjie for her lovely face.

Most Original

Who are they that come when deeds be done

And with wit and humor make display? Why Nancy again, and Voit of course. Who have the most original way!

POEM OF MAY CLASS OF 1934

Mary Miller, Poet

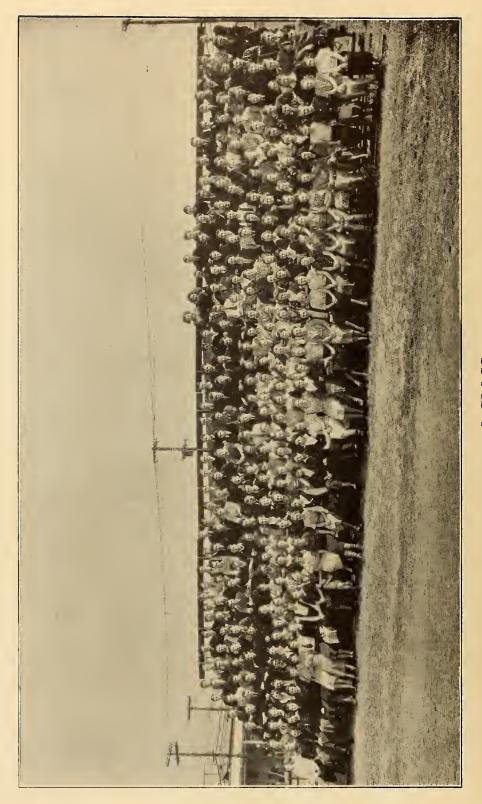

The quiet closing, one by one, of doors
On chambers where we followed Wisdom's guiding finger,
Makes us realize we may not enter more,
Though Memory bids us ever linger.
For within our hearts to thee, oh school, a lasting love is sown,
Strong as thy stately pines have grown.

Ere the key turned, our hearts had cried, "Away!"
But now, classmate, we stand with arms outstretched and reaching up,
For we must bid farewell with wistful eyes, tho' we would stay
To cool our thirst by drinking from the cup
Which quenches not, but ever feeds the glorious fire
That burns within us, quickened by our soul's desire.

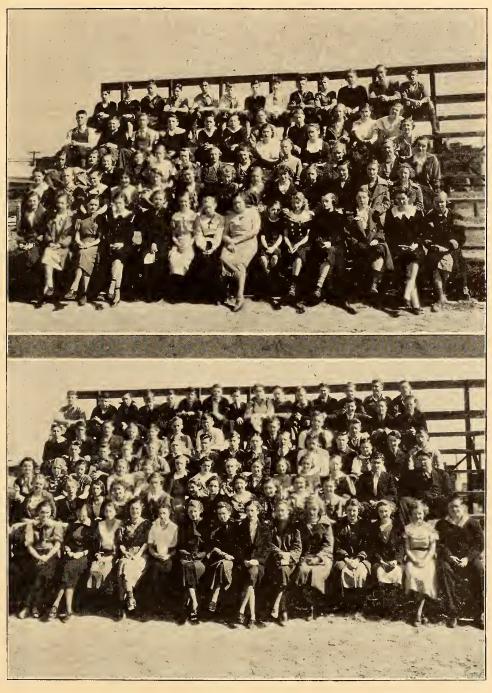

From thee, oh fount of knowledge and of learning, We turn—unwilling, unafraid, yet yearning.

REYNOLDS HIGH SCHOOL PRINT SHOP

Trade printing was offered this year beginning with the second semester's work in printing. The work of the trade printing students was continued for the second year in the various commercial printing establishments of the community that are cooperating in this vocational training program.

The Printers Club carried on a limited program after school, meeting with the night school class in printing for lectures and special programs.

The printing of this Black and Gold was the largest single job done during the year. A majority of the printing for the various city departments this year was produced in the shop as well as Pine Whispers and the usual school work.

28—Th..—Emily Smither ends her career as poet she almost ends her life.

SEPTEMBER

September is a lovely time With a soft and golden clime, When summer camps are closing down, And sunburned backs return to town To prepare for dear old school.

Studes" acquire that earnest look, And under each arm carry a book That they must make seen; They begin classroom apologies For forgetting Caesar and the "olo-

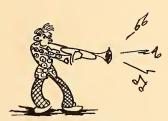

And try to nourish their bean.

They test their brains with dumb conjunctions,

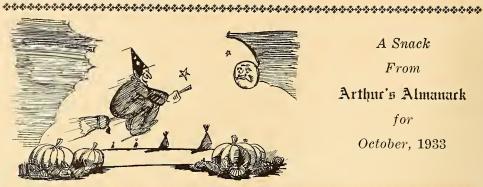

Water and its many functions;
They arise at quarter to eight
With the constant fear they'll be late.
Oh give back those summer trips With nary a care for tardy slips.

Royce Crim at the tender age of one year one day and one month.

Examine closely and perhaps you can see Harry's tonsils.

A Spring Romance in Midwinter

Listen, my children, and you shall hear, Of the poor broker, Arthur, and his wife, Guinivere.

It seems that Guinnie was full of pep, And with other laddies liked to step, While Arthur had to stay out late, Attending to affairs of state.

Now Launcelot was a handsome guy. A noble playboy, but sorta shy: He had no horse but a Rolls-Royce, All stream-lined and with plenty of force:

Guinnie for Launcelot her cap had set— And Guinnie, my loves, had never missed yet.

Launcelot brought her diamonds from Tiffany's tournament.

And Guinnie wore orchids wherever she went.

She decided she'd sue and again be free.

Using the well known grounds of "incompacibility".

She wanted alimony, a thousand per-But the market fell and so did Arthur.

Now Guinnie lives in a little flat— Content with only this and that. And Arthur is a happy man. He worries no more for "American Can."

Guinnie has no one to tell her woes.
She and Arthur only go to picture shows.

And when Guinnie receives a diamond pin,

You may be sure that it is from the five and ten.

1—Fr.—Youth of W. S. find that eating cranberries, turkeys, and cakes may be the reason for diaphragm-aches! (This is poetry, in case you can't appreciate it.)

2—Sa.—Helen Arthur, the big (in-more-than-one way), blue-eyed blond decides to go on a diet. After all, we're all human!

3—Su.—Good use made of last night in holidays.

Helen Arthur stops dieting—lack of food made her weak (in-more-than-one-way).

4—Mo.—President of classes and Student Council discuss drive for "school spirit". (Whatever that may be).

5—Tu.—Anna Wray Fogle stops eating peanut brittle. Reason: She learned in chemistry that it is made of old rags.

6—We.—Mr. Ralph Brimley accepts position as basketball coach. Notice: All boys interested in coming out for basketball report at gym at 2:30 this afternoon.

CHRISTMAS

Twas the night before Christmas And each laddie and lass
Was staying out all night.
In hopes that St. Nicholas would pass.

Finally Santa came, With presents for all: He brought Bobby Helm some milk, Luther Pike—a basketball.

To the good little track boys He brought a gorgeous new bike; "You'll get there quicker," he wrote, "If you don't try to hike!"

To Mary Woodruff he gave a dumbell. So she'd grow quite tall and strong: To George Blum the diploma He had striven for so long.

To Voit Gilmore he left To Volt Gumbre he telt
Some skates and a jump rope:
To Helen Cockerham a dolly,
And all the good things you hope. could

To Bunny Hines he gave A book for a present; It was full of compliments Bunny had to himself sent.

So Christmas day came With much shouting and noise. Each kiddie was pleased With his lovely new toys;

But all the bad children— I may add they were few Received not a thing— Was one of them you?

FEBRUARY

February is a merry month,
A windy, wild, and flurry month;
A time of rain and spring-like signs,
Of sweet, shy looks and valentines;
Clifton Naughton, people say,
Gives such things to Ethel Mae.
B. C. Hall, with much languor,
Pays his court to Miss Alexander.
Woe is mel I have no lover;
In my mailbox I discover
Comic notes to me addressed
Leaving me sore distressed. Leaving me sore distressed.

3.—Edna Earl Clinard returns to school with a new Christmas present, a permanent wave. Necessity causes her to charge five dollars fine on anyone who touches her hair. She had to pay doctor's bills for those who were burned by touching her flaming locks.

Jan.12.—Quill and Scroll (or Squill and Quroll or Squeal and Squawl, or what-have-you) has its annual "sucker-calling". Suckers called were Henry Stokes, Gilbert Lee, Ethel Mae Angelo, Jimmy Sparks, Odell Salmon Mae Angelo, Jimmy Sparks, Odell Salmon, Reid Bahnson, Evelyn Tesh, and Bobby (Sweetpea) Helm. Mary Matthews used her usual soft and golden eloquence to call the suckers. She was assisted in her persuasive efforts by old members.

Jan. 17.—Seniors of the January class decide to put away "childish things", and after four years of kid day, they come to the conclusions that it's high time to become dignified before going out into the cold, cold world.

Jan. 26.—Hail the day of consecration, dear old seniors graduation! After years of preparation, they've attained their destination, leaving with the confirmation that some day an elevation in this world's delapidation will be made as their creation, some great work of domination to attain a lofty station. We give them our congratulation!

Feb. 2.—Cream of R. J. R. tapped into the National Honor Society. George Bynum presides.
Great sensation created by those tapped who were lead on stage like lost sheep.

Feb. 6.—Tony Comoddi blows into school for the first time. (It's an ill wind that blows no good).

Feb. 9.—Bobby Mills, in his never-ending attempt to get under all things, joins the Hanes night shift and is now packing underwear. We "underwear" he is tonight.

Feb. 13.—Mr. Joyner appoints six girls, Esther Hinshaw, Dorothy Shaw, Harriet Taylor, Dorothy Correll, Lucile Weatherman, and Kathleen Anderson, to help in the nurses office. New nurses report extra number of fainting cases due to announcements of final exams.

Feb. 23.—Honest Hugh (Cash), alias Mr. Allred, finds that matrimony isn't all it's cracked up to be in "Finders Keepers." Catherine Johnson, alias Mrs. Allred, finds that honesty might be the best policy after all, but she seems to get quite a kick out of pouncing on Hugh (or mabe Hugh gets the kick).

1934

March 1, 2, 3, etc.—Weather forecast: Rain. More rain.
Still more rain!

March 5, 6, 7.—Weather forecast: Sleet. More sleet. Still more sleet! No school. Pencil sharpeners frozen. Still no school. No light on subjects.

March 12—19.—Annual visit of Mr. Cole, or "The Woman's Home Companion." brings again the subscription contest and school rivalry. Although the "Flying Clouds" advised the "Westward Ho's" to go east, the horizon darkened for the former, and with the star salesman, Edna Earl Clinard, the "Westward Ho's" came out on top, but alas, not a very high top.

April 6.—Red Letter Day. Debaters, having been chosen for their talkitiveness, talk themselves and the rest of the student body out of the third period class. We offer them our deepest appreciation for living up to expectations; results on report cards would have been disastrous if they hadn't. But their efforts were of no avail. The debate was lost and, oh, the extra homework! Won't a vacation be nice? Dramatic Night brings back long lost school spirit. Seniors show superiority to other classes by winning the silver loving cup.

MARCH AND APRIL

March and April, months of spring.
Months which lovely flowers bring:
Months of poets' lyrics sweet,
Months of ladies' spring clothes neat
Months of annual spring debates,
Lost because of hostile fates;
Months of baseballs, well known pills,
Months of our spring fever ills:
Though a poet I long to be,
Inspiration flies from me:
So this song to a close I bring—
Months of joy, thy praise I sing.

Bobby deserts the helm and R. J. R. loses the debate.

DOWN THROUGH THE AGES

Down through the ages in story and song Have come tales of the great men of old; Of men who have journeyed to far distant lands

To seek fabulous treasures of gold;

Of warriors, of statesmen, of poets, and of kings;

Of yeomen and brave, stalwart knights;

Of men who gained coveted fame and renown,

And of soldiers who fought gallant fights; Of Caesar whose legions conquered the Gauls:

Of Hannibal's bravely fought frays;

Of great Alexander, who conquered the world;

Of Homer's minstrel lays.

Great men who have worked with the sword and the pen

Have conquered in life's great fray,

And the names of these men ringing down through the years

Are a challenge to youths of today.

FACTS ABOUT SCHOOL

There are thirty-two loving cups on exhibit in the hall and the library.

The "stone" railings on topmost points of the building are not stone. They are made of sheet metal, and are quite hollow.

The library contains between eight and nine thousand books.

The high school building was built before the auditorium.

The journalism and home economic rooms on the first floor were once a loby.

"Pine Whispers" is 10 years old, the first issue being published on November 17, 1924.

Football was begun in 1913 in the city schools and was coached by Mr. J. W. Moore.

There has been only one girl to attain the honor of presidency of the student body.

The exhibit of African spears and other warring implements was given by Doctor Fred Hanes. They are in one of the library display windows.

There are six bulletin boards on the first floor.

There are twelve trash baskets on the first floor.

There are thirty sections of windows in one side of the north court.

There are 23 drinking fountains in the halls of the school building.

Some years ago a way was discovered to make pipe smoking even more of a pleasure than it had ever been before, through taking the "bite" out of smoking tobacco. This discovery, made right here in Winston-Salem, changed the smoking habits of millions of men and led to the present world-wide esteem for Prince Albert. You are missing the full delight of pipe smoking if you don't smoke "P. A." It is cooler...burns slower...tastes better. And Prince Albert does not bite the tongue.

THE SECOND DAY

When the second morning of the tournament dawned
Again the trumpets warn the combatant that the fight was on
And headlong into the fray they rushed
Confident that they would win.
Along the single lines of battle
Some had fallen; a few to rise again refreshed.

Others too weak to rise. Bold Sir Lawrence still commanding Gave courage to the gallant men And spurred them up to fight again. In the basketball affray Captain Carol led her squadron. The second day of the tournament Died and still no great feat Was accomplished by either side Of the noble Knights.

THE THIRD DAY

It was not until the third day
Several of the Junior Knights
Fought with and conquered
Royal Knights of old repute.
Brave Sir Grammar trying desperately
To overpower one of the Juniors
Was hurled to earth with a mighty

The paper also carried a big story on the recent wedding of Gladys Lambe to Prince Charles of the royal family of Burgshap. In the wedding had been Anna Leak Scott, Mary Louise McClung, Virginia Tesh, and Suzanne Weeks. George Blum had been the ring bearer.

Merlin turned to me with this revelation. Did I want to see more? No, that was enough. Slowly I turned to the old wizard of the ancient court. He, however, had forgotten me by this time as King Arthur had just entered with a new problem for his adviser.
